

Whole Foods supermarket opened on Barbara Street in the fall of 2011. The building has been home to numerous supermarkets over the years.

Mann and Rodgers Funeral Home is still in business at the corner of South Huntington and Perkins Street diagonally across the street from the former Cardinal O'Connell Seminary.

New Apartment and retail building at the corner of Centre and Creighton Streets in Hyde Square.
On this site was the former Blessed Sacrament rectory.

Two views below of the now closed and abandoned Blessed Sacrament Church on Centre Street in Jamaica Plain. The last Mass took place on August 29, 2004 and the parish was suppressed on September 1, 2004. Plans are underway to convert the great romanesque church into a condo complex.

The Former Blessed Sacrament rectory moved to Creighton Street and is now a condo complex.

Two more views below of the former Cardinal O'Connell Seminary on South Huntington Ave in Jamaica Plain.

Two more views below of the former Seminary and now home of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (MSPCA). The word angell associated with the name is the last name of the founder of the Society in Massachusetts in the mid 1800s. The seminary opened in November 1951 and closed in 1970.

